Generative AI use in your writing

Hollywood Gliterature stands firmly against the use of generative AI use in the crafting of books and if you use generative AI to write your books, this event is not for you. We asked every author to check mark a box stating that they understood this stance when they turned in their registration. In other words, every author who signed up already agreed to abide by this condition.

AI use for covers

Hollywood Gliterature wants to be clear that if you use AI for your covers, those covers are not allowed at our event. If we find any AI covers in the store or at other author events during this conference, they will be removed and you may lose your opportunity to sign. We take this very seriously, as do most of our readers, so please understand that if you try to sell your AI covered stories at our event, you may be banned from participating in the future.
